- Experience guiding and working with diverse groups on public lands in backcountry or challenging outdoor settings, as well as experience driving on rugged, four-wheel-drive roads in remote locations.
- Ability to spend 3-5 consecutive days at a time in remote locations without cell phone service and the willingness to work in all types of weather conditions, including harsh and often high-temperature desert environments.

- Basic familiarity with GIS (Geographic Information Systems).
- Competence with Google Drive, Microsoft Office and standard data input systems.
- Commitment to working a flexible, needs-driven schedule, including frequent weekend stewardship trips.
